WHERE TULIPS & COMMUNITY FLOURISH

The Skagit Valley Tulip Festival was born in 1984 as a local celebration of the region's stunning tulip bloom. Over time, the event has grown into a month-long countywide celebration that attracts visitors from not just the Puget Sound region but across the world!

The Festival celebrates both the breathtakingly beautiful blooms throughout the valley and the greater Skagit Valley community—its diverse offerings, events, businesses, restaurants, and additional places to visit and stay throughout the year.

This colorful celebration has become a cornerstone of the Skagit Valley, driving economic stimulus, community engagement, and support for area agriculture and businesses.

Honoring the area's fertile agricultural heritage, the Skagit Valley Tulip Festival showcases the beauty of these extraordinary flowers and the vibrant community they represent.

WHY SUPPORT THE FESTIVAL?

Traffic Busting

Managing traffic is a top priority. Those especially bright and beautiful days can become busy, but the goal is to minimize the impact of traffic day to day. Your sponsorship supports:

- Mobile-Friendly Website: The festival's mobile-friendly website provides maps of attractions and direct links to business locations for easy navigation. This helps visitors plan their trip and navigate the county efficiently.
- Traffic Collaboration and Coordination: The festival works with major stakeholders, including the Washington State Department of Transportation (WSDOT), Public Works, and law enforcement, to review and improve traffic management practices.
- Signage and Lights: Public Works installs flashing lights on stop signs, "no parking" signs on shoulders, and "local traffic only" signs on specific roads to guide visitors and reduce congestion.
- Overtime Officers: The festival funds overtime officers who direct traffic at key points, such as McLean and Beaver Marsh Roads.

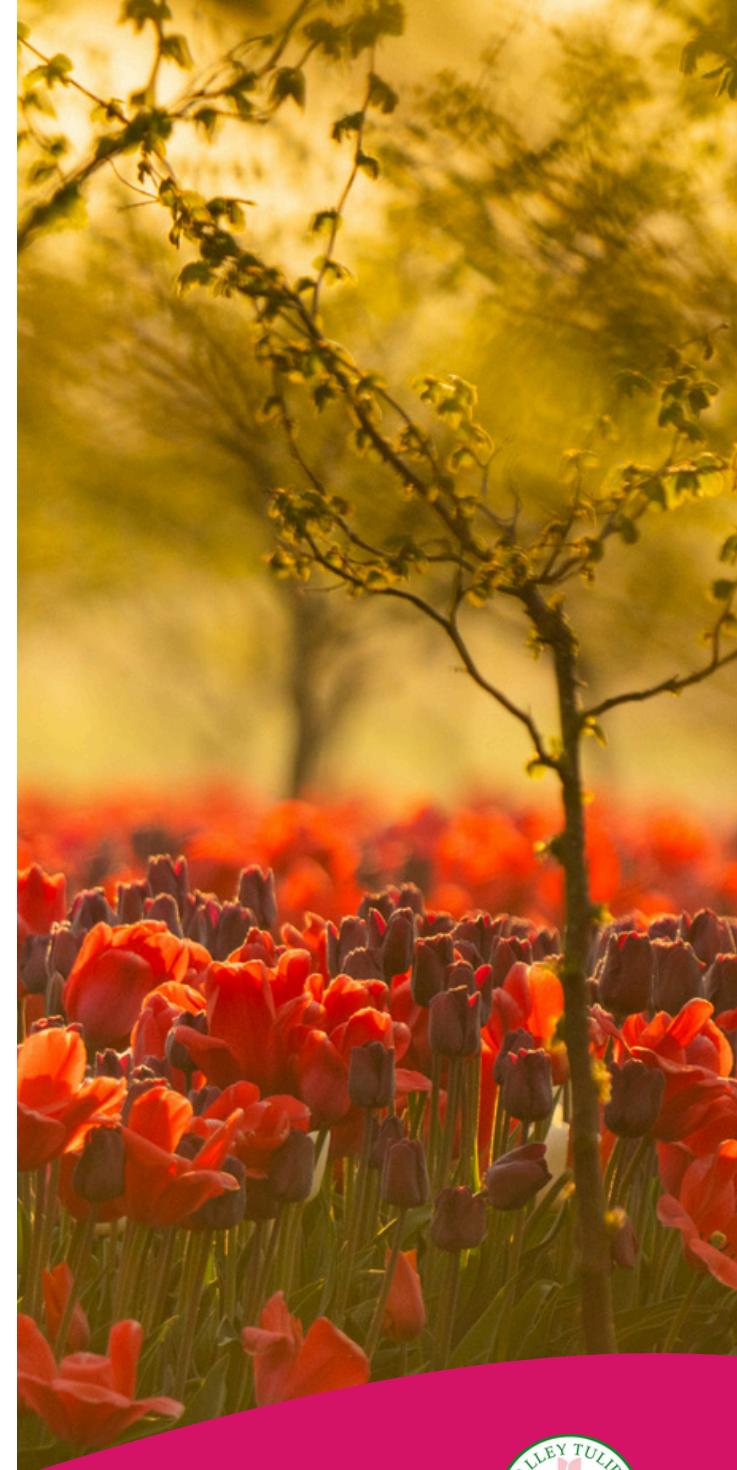

WHY SUPPORT THE FESTIVAL?

Agricultural Advocacy

The Skagit Valley Tulip Festival not only helps educate youth but also champions Skagit agriculture on a global stage. Here's how you support the farming community:

- Year-Round Education: Beyond April, the festival serves as a springboard for sharing the story of Skagit agriculture across over 600,000 visitors to the SVTF website and 160,000 followers on social media.
- Sharing Sustainable Farming Practices: Festival organizers and participating farms prioritize sustainable practices. The festival helps share how Skagit farms focus on soil health and crop rotation to preserve the land and its resources.
- Stunning Visual Storytelling: Executive Director Nicole Roozen sees the tulips as a visual representation of Skagit Valley's rich agricultural heritage. The festival highlights the hard work and practices behind these colorful blooms.
